

Transform Your Reporting Control Framework

The Challenge

Combined with the abundance of global regulatory reporting obligations already in the books, the array of changing trade reporting regulations are straining firms' operations to a heightened degree. Increased regulatory scrutiny, greater focus on accuracy and data quality, and readiness for upcoming rules changes are all clear and present pain points for firms today. And when a firm's infrastructure and related control framework is already a patchwork of functionalities from a decade of adapting to the regulatory evolution, firms face mounting pressures.

DID YOU KNOW

Since 2017, the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) has fined firms nearly £130 million for failure to comply with Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (MiFID) and European Markets Infrastructure Regulation (EMIR) rules. Since 2019, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) has fined firms nearly $70 million for similar breaches in CFTC reporting.* Many of these breaches were exacerbated by a lack of a clear control framework and governance around remediation items.

Effective control frameworks may not only mitigate the threat of fines but can also help avoid some of the time-consuming and costly activities associated with examinations, attestation, remediation, and ongoing supervision by establishing a construct that focuses on early-identification and prevention.
