President Joseph Biden signed a bill today, the Juneteenth National Independence Day Act, making June 19th a national holiday commemorating the end of slavery in the U.S.

In order to minimize disruption to the markets, the U.S. Federal Reserve, the exchanges and DTCC have collectively determined to remain open on both Friday, June 18, 2021, and Monday, June 21, 2021, and will continue to operate business as usual this year. This conforms to our standard practice for any federal holiday that falls on a Saturday.
